

Acronova Attends CES 2010 with Newest Products

The provider of compact and multi-functional CD/DVD/BD autoloader attends CES 2010 with Nimbie, Xymba and a brand new ink-jet printing solution.

North Brunswick, New Jersey, December 2009 – Acronova Technology, Inc. is once again exhibiting at CES and this time with even greater anticipation than ever. Located in South Hall 1 booth 21952, Acronova will be exhibiting the Nimbie, Xymba and in addition also their newest ink-jet printing solution. Both the Nimbie and the Xymba have a strong market position and proven to be successful innovations over the course of last and this year.

The Nimbie is the most compact, multi-functional and fully automated autoloader with 100 disc capacity. The application-dynamic Nimbie is not only for office users but also ideal for professional duplication service provider who seek to save time and money by automating their disc production. Nimbie users come from every corner with every application such as music and video production, software disc production, ripping of ones music collection, disc back up, disc duplication with labeling for distribution etc. Even individual users now choose the Nimbie to simplify their disc processing needs, not only because of its reasonable and affordable pricing but also because it is a true quality product on the market.

The Xymba is a dual-drive LightScribe publisher with auto-disc flip function. Xymba is designed for users with on-demand disc publishing needs. From disc burning to disc flipping to disc labeling, Xymba does it all in automation. Xymba is also the best choice for system integrators with special disc processing needs who cater to extraordinary niche markets.

Based on years of research and customer feedback, the new ink-jet printing solution is designed with volume, quality, stability, flexibility and compatibility in mind. The new product will only be revealed at the show so don't forget to visit Acronova at booth 21952 in South Hall 1.
